Malacañang Palace , Capital City of Greater Manilla
Federal Republic of the Philippines
March 5, 2050

Malacañang Palace

In the Malacañang Palace which has expanded 10 years ago, and inside one of the offices as there is a woman who appears at the age of 20. But her human-like appearance but it is a lie as instead she is someone more powerful but not as powerful as the Red Dragon of the East.

Many years ago due to his huge ambitions to expand his territories and his influence, he tried to attack the Philippines and take the Republic of China who we know as Taiwan. But sadly unfortunately, Taiwan has been a protectorate to the Philippines ever since after the Chinese Civil War during the Cold War. But more of it was for later on.

The woman who is looking out of the window was none other than Philia Maharlikas, the Eagle Saint of the Orient Seas. She has been the leader of the Philippines for more than 150 years alongside many Philippine Presidents from Emilio Aguinaldo all the way to today's President Luna Moonwalker.

Today, a typhoon appeared after more than a year of no typhoons for some reason. But this time its different as Philia felt strange about the typhoon, well normally when a typhoon is coming to the Philippines as she would feel dizzy and get sick as she herself does not go well with typhoons. She really hates it as the Philippines is one of the many nations with the most natural disasters such as earthquakes, volcanoes, tsunamis and the most devastating typhoons.

How ironic after all she has her very own personal superpowers, her abilities to control both the Water and Air Elements but at a limited scale due to herself being classified as a Major Power-Type Support-Class Countryhuman according to the UN Countryhumans Standards. But she has very great healing powers and can summon spirits of the dead if she wishes to.

But back to where we are, this typhoon was strange because she did not feel dizzy but she still has a feeling of dread crawling up her half-human spine. "The rain is so strong as always." Philia said as she watch the raindrops fall from the sky.

Just then blue lightning starts appearing, but Philia was shocked she has never seen this phenomenon throughout her life of more than 150 years. Although lightning rarely appears during typhoons, but blue lightning was not very known in the Philippines due to being considered as fiction.

As heavy rainfall continued for the next few hours but still cannot stop, Philia was worried about the rural and the still undeveloped provinces in the Philippines especially the least developed coastal beaches where flooding occurs. Luckily, if it weren't for the her good friend from the United States. Things here in the Philippines will be terribly bad because of corruption and poverty if without his help.

Just then the door in her office opens behind her, a man comes who appears as the same age as her but he wears a military uniform which he still wears ever since after World War 2 but more sophisticated and better than before. His name is Philip Maharlikas, the Lion Warrior of the Morning Sun and the Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces of the Philippines.

Philip has challenged many Countryhumans throughout his life, many of them were more stronger than him including the Red Dragon, but he managed to not only wound his enemies but also scarred them including one time during the Korean War he was fighting against the North Korean Countryhuman and were evenly matched and today they remain as rivals.

According to UN Countryhumans Standards he is a Major Power-

Type Warrior-Class Countryhuman. His powers were his manipulation of Earth and Fire Elements as well as Lightning, Combustion, and Metal.

"Ate, are you feeling dizzy, normally you would get dizzy during typhoons." Philip said as Philia shrugged her shoulders. "I don't know, maybe this typhoon is more peaceful than I thought. But the typhoon was very unusual today."

"But I don't feel any bloodshed from the last few hours ever since this strange typhoon appears." Philip said as a Warrior-Class Countryhuman he can feel any bloodshed in his nation as well as enjoying his own bloodlust during times of war when he leads the Armed Forces of the Philippines while his sister stayed in the Philippines.

The typhoon was perplexing and strange as they can see yellow colors at the clouds along with blue lightning as well, the entire social media here in the Philippines as well as Taiwan and the Bangsamoro Commonwealth which is another protectorate founded after the 2030s was flooded with news of this mystery typhoon. "Ate, anything from PAGASA?" Philip asked his sister.

Philia already received a report from the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration or most commonly referred to as the PAGASA from 2 hours ago. "This typhoon was unlike other typhoons in our history. First, it rapidly became a Category 6 from the Marianas. This suprised PAGASA researchers. Then, it came from where Low-Pressure Area commonly appears, this is unheard of since we're having El Niño conditions here. Last but not at least, its behavior is abnormal as its outer part spins to the left, and inner part spins to the right, while also having a glowing yellow eye at the center."

But Philip was very skeptical about this, because not only he can't feel any bloodshed, but also this is straight out of science fiction because of this mysterious typhoon.

"Hmm, may I see that." Philip said as he was given Philia's IPhone and quickly became shocked. "Ate, is this information real but this is impossible."

"It is real, Kuya." Philia said as they look at the satellite picture of the typhoon, Philia was right, what was even more shocking is that this typhoon is the biggest in the entire history of the Philippines.

It stretched from the Mariana Islands including the Island of Guam at the east all the way to the Spratly Islands at the west, the entire Philippines is completely covered by the typhoon as it also covers Taiwan and Sabah.

But before Philip asked any questions and then suddenly a massive storm of lighning appears throughout Manila and even at the Bay, as civilians runs around in search of safe places to survive. Meanwhile the police and the military garrison organized the evacuation in order preventing any unnecessary deaths, although many were injured because of the running crowd of civilians fleeing for their lives but not too severely and fatal.

Back at the Malacañang, both Philip was running and holding his sister's hand desperate to protect her at the hallways. Along the way many staff members were panicking, and government officials and guards tried to organize the evacuation.

But suddenly a massive lightning struck the Malacañang, as Philip covered his sister in an attempt to protect her before suddenly everything goes white.

(Earlier )

Meanwhile earlier before the lightning struck, President Luna Moonwalker was busy talking with the man who was wearing his unique barong tagalog. He was the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Roman Santamaria.

For those who did not know President Luna, she is of American descent. It all started when a group of American soldiers who were tired of Imperialism during the Philippine-American War, they decided defect to the First Republic of the Philippines. Leading them was Luna's ancestor and great great grandfather Marcus Moonwalker.

Thanks to their efforts and with the support of the Anti-Imperialist

League, they were able to save the Philippines from American Imperialism. After that as the Moonwalker family became important heroes in the Philippines. Now Luna Moonwalker was recently elected as the newest and second female President of the Philippines after Ninoy Acquino.

Right now she is arguing with the Minister of Foreign Affairs who had a bad relationship with the President Herself. Both of them were arguing about the homesick Americans who were stuck in the Philippines due to the mysterious typhoon.

"No! I will not allow the Americans from leaving the Philippines! It is too dangerous for them to return to the American Continent due to that typhoon!" President Luna said to the Minister in an irritating tone.

"No, Ms. President! The American ambassador has been nagging me about the stranded 20,000 American troops who were participating in the 2050 Exercise 2nd Island Shield! They have been pleading to return home immediately!" Minister Roman said in also an irritating but frustrating tone.

Let's just say that both the Moonwalker Family and the Santamaria Family have a very bad history with each other. The former were the Americans who defected to the Philippines during the Philippine-American War, while the latter was from the one of the most prominent families who supported the Katipunan.

To many in the Philippines, it is best to leave the two families alone as long as they don't cause any chaos in the Philippines. Only the Twins have the power to stop this conflict of the two families.

"Both the PAGASA and NOAA have clearly advised any ships or aircrafts must not leave until the typhoon has passed. Their Countryhuman has already instructed his people to remain here for the time being!" President Luna said in which Minister Roman replied.

"But the Americans and their families won't stop protesting our decisions! They are becoming increasingly anxious and will not even stop! They are already becoming homesick every second!"

Minister Roman countered with his own argument.

"I understand, Roman! However, my experience as the former Chief Admiral of the Philippine Navy showed that the typhoon poses an extremely dangerous threat to both sea ane air travel! We cannot risk thousands of lives at the bottom of the seas just to calm them down!" President Luna said as the office then turned into complete silence.

But before Minister Roman could speak, suddenly as a door swung open showing an assistant whose hand was on the doorknob. The assistant's face showed signs of uneasiness due to him overhearing the very loud argument. The young assistant began to speak in a hesitant tone.

"M-Ms. President.... O-Our Coun-Country would lik-like to spe-speak to you n-now..." The assistant then hurriedly leave as it is common that interfering with the conflict of the two families would result in horrible consequences.

Signing frustration, Minister Roman turned to President Luna. "Just you wait... As soon as I am done with you..." Minister Roman then left as he slammed the door shut.

President Luna then sat down as she calms down, she is clearly tired of Minister Roman. Both of them were rivals ever since their high school times. Even though the conflict started to cool off in recent times, Minister Roman has been causing trouble for President Luna shortly after her first years of presidency. Fortunately, only the Twins have the power to keep the conflict in control.

When suddenly, blue lightning began to strike the Capital City and the nearby Bay as everyone began to run for their lives. Before Luna could do anything, she too fell down as an extremely bright but also blinding light appeared. All Luna could think was that was it a nuclear bomb in confusion.

the Earth, this figure knows that anarchy will appear shortly after, as other nations especially Southeast Asia were afraid of China but luckily after losing the war against the Philippines and their allies, China lost many of its military powers but it's nuclear arsenal remained.

China remains under close watch by the UN especially the United States, but luckily the Philippines was fine and the nation has a very special task to defeat a nation far more dangerous than China.

"Project Transference has been completed, my children, please save them just as you once saved them before."

Switching to another screen showing a world three times larger than Earth, the Philippines reappears at the Great Orient at the east, now located at the northeast of the continent that was half the size of Australiasia.

Royal Emerald Palace, Capital City of Qua-Toyne
March 6, 2050/Marckruz 6, 1639

"We may be closing to anconflict with the Kingdom of Louria far sooner than we ever expected." Prime Minister Kanata von Bismenburg from the Elven House of Bismenburg announced. Many within the Lotus Parliament turned incredibly pale upon hearing the news with their ears.

Since the end of the Rodenius War decades ago, the Kingdom of Louria has begun a large-scale military build-up and modernization far faster than the Principality of Qua-Toyne and the Kingdom of Quila. Soon there would be a massive Lourian army at the border that separates the Continent of Rodenius into east and west.

Currently, the Kingdom of Louria's military build-up and modernization has turned them into a major regional power with a professional army, a powerful navy, and a formidable wyvern force. Not to mention, their enormous material and economic support from the Parpaldian Empire which is the Superpower of the 3rd Civilization Zone in the Continent of Phillades.

When compared to the Royal Qua-Toynan Army, the Lourians outnumbered them by a huge margin. If the modernization started much earlier and the repeated budget cuts, then the Principality would be easily be stomped by the Lourians. It will be a cruel reality.

While the huge difference in military strength was already depressing enough, they were also a rising superpower. The Lourians were far more equipped and far more trained as there was now an even bigger disadvantage beyond a mere simple numerical disparity. The huge fact that they were supported by the Parpaldian Empire was the nail in the wooden coffin.

"Without the support of our allies, we have no way of defending ourselves against the Lourians." Prime Minister Kanata continued as he then turned to the young elven woman who was sitting on the Emerald Throne. "Princess Regnant, do you have anything to say about this?"

Princess Regnant Eloise von Hohenburg II of the Principality of Qua-Toyne sat on her Emerald Throne with a contemplating look on her face. "Have we even asked our allies for support?"

"Yes, Your Highness. But all of them refused our help for many reasons. The Topans are too busy rebuilding the Doors of the World, the Fennese and the Altarans are more concerned with the Parpaldian Empire. Even the Riemish refused to help us due to their economic downfall with the Parpaldians. All refused to help us because of the Parpaldian Empire." Prime Minister Kanata.

"Then we have to use what we have now. If we continue to build up our forces through modernization, conscription, and even smuggling with the Black Market Organization. We may be able to hold the Lourians at bay until we evacuate our people to other neighbouring countries." The Minister of Military Affairs, Lynar von Weissenburg.

"That would only cause the inevitable collapse of the Monarchy! We needed support from a nation with a strong military power!" Minister of Foreign Affairs, Rinsui von Ribdentroph.

"But they all refused to help us! We will all be in a massive disadvantage if the war started!" Minister of State Security, Erenn von Whilistine.

"Then what are we going to do?! With no one to help us, then how should we win such a conflict with Louria?!" Minister of Home Affairs, Yanaka von Hindedarck.

Princess Regnant Eloise signed as she never though that she is going to lead her nation into conflict just like her father from the Rodenius War decades ago. She prayed that only if anyone would even save them.

Suddenly, a messenger arrived with an urgent message. "Your Highness! I have an emergency message from the Maihark Defense Headquarters!" Everyone was shocked with terror in their hearts. Princess Regnant Eloise stood up in shock as she asked the messenger. "What is it?!"

"An unknown aerial object has entered Maihark's airspace! The 6th and 7th Dragon Squadrons were sent to stop the unknown flying object!" The messenger replied.

Near the Solius Ocean, Northern Region of Maihark
Principality of Qua-Toyne
March 6, 2050/Marckruz 6, 1639

Captain Marl Partima alongside his men who were the 6th Dragon Squadron, the most elite wyvern knights of Qua-Toyne. They were flying over the waters of the Principality Coast, just near the Trade City of Maihark. He then lazily gazes as he sees dolphins and large whales swimming under the surface of the sea below him and his men.

From their position up in the sky, riding their wyverns, they see many villages inland. The smoke columns from the fireplaces can be seen going up.

To the historians of Earth, the Wyvern Knights resembled the Teutonic Knights but instead of white capes with black cross. They wear green capes with the National Seal of the Principality which resembles a woman praying, alongside their national flags flowing on the wyvern's backs.

Flag of the Principality of Qua-Toyne

This was the symbol of the Goddess of the Fertility, Astalte who is also the Goddess of the Elves. She is the one who provided the Principality bountiful harvests every year.

It was a warm and sunny day in this part of the country. The relaxing and warm feeling of the summer breeze would make a person feel like at home. But in Captain Marl and his men's case, it was the opposite.

They are here to protect the coast that the Kingdom of Louria, a nation that was located in Western Rodenius. That nation was increasingly becoming hostile every year.

For years, the Principality of Qua-Toyne and their ally the Kingdom of Quila in the south. They have been under the looming threat of war by the Kingdom of Louria.

Led by King Jurn Louria XXVII The Slaughterer, Louria began its conquest of the Western Rodenius decades ago. Louria has conquered less than 4 nations and a few minors including the Wylow Commonwealth, Rhondesia Federation and the Kingdom of Malus. Because of this, the Kingdom of Qua-Toyne, the Principality's predecessor alongside the Kingdom of Quila declared war on Louria.

Together as one, the Qua-Toyne Army, Wyvern Corps, and the Royal Navy defeated the Lourian Army, Wyvern Corps and the Naval Forces during the First Rodenius War. But it's been decades. Now the Principality is weaker than before.

It's infamous Army, around 200,000 men was reduced to 80,000 men. It's Navy around 600 ships was reduced to 150 ships, most of them are newly built ship-of-the-lines

But worst of all was the Qua-Toynan Wyvern Corps which is the pride of the nation, was severely reduced. From 200 wyverns to a mere 100, this significantly reduced their air defense capabilities. Meanwhile, Louria is increasing its military might every year on a much larger scale.

What was once a regional power hundred years ago, became the most weakest in the continent. The Kingdom of Qua-Toyne was reduced into the smaller and weaker Principality of Qua-Toyne that is known today.

"Bureaucracy at its finest!" One of Marl's men mockingly said. "Elves and Dwarves, taking everything we made from our own sweat and blood that we worked so hard!"

Marl then said to his men. "Dummkopfs, do that when you're at home." He then sighs in frustration because of one of his men who was both arrogant and hateful of demi-humans.

But then suddenly their wyverns suddenly began to act weird as they started to crawing and their eyes blinking in morse code, their eyes staring at the northeastern direction. Marl is confused but he decided to investigate and after translating the Morse Code which he understood from his wyvern's blinking eyes, but one of his men said. "Herr Marl, there nothing there in that direction!"

But then suddenly their wyverns also decided to follow as well, while their riders were shocked and some were trying to regain control. But their wyverns wouldn't listen as they continue their direction. "Hey partner, stop! Or else I will take away your food!" One of the knights said as he tried to pull the reins of his wyvern.

"All of you please shut up, do you see what's in the distance." Marl said as he sees a black dot, confusing Marl. Marl has a very good eyesight due to his experience as a wyvern rider, in addition to his spyglass that he is using right now. "Why are you going there? There is nothing but open ocean there!"

Marl then reported to Maihark Headquarters via ManaComm. "This is Captain Marl of the 6th Dragon Squadron. I got an unknown flying object closing in on to our position. Beginning with interception."

It wasn't long until the wyvern knights finally saw what Captain Marl is looking at. A small dot forming at the sky, there in that direction was only open ocean and dangerous waters. "What the hell is that?! You spotted it Captain, great job! I think you would have a promotion after this!" One of the knights said.

But Captain Marl said. "Enough with this, we have to investigate! Follow my orders, we need to know what was that in the distance!" He then lookd down at his wyvern. "As for you, you're a good boy! I will give you even more food than before!" His wyvern then replied in a happy craw in response.

"Now then let's investigate that flying object!" Captain Marl then picks up his ManaComm as he spoke. "Headquarters, this is Captain Marl of the 6th Dragon Squadron! We are closing and investigating the mysterious flying object! Beginning interception!"

Captain Marl and his men then went closer towards the incoming intruder as it also comes closer and closer to them. Many of them were anxious and confused, it could be from Louria and it came from an area where there's only open ocean. After half an hour, they finally saw the flying object at a much closer distance.

But before Captain Marl have any orders. Then suddenly the same arrogant knight from earlier began charging straight for the flying object. Captain Marl was greatly suprised by his subordinate's action. "Dummkopfs, stop charging there without orders."

"To hell with orders, I'm going to take that thing down now." The knight said as he tried to charge straight through in a straight distance. But it suddenly went around both Marl and the knights shocking and their wyverns in the process. "What is the name of the Ancient Sorcerous Empire is that?!"

This allows them to see the flying object, it was grey and bigger having a larger wingspan than their wyverns. There was what looks like an eye-like bump below the nose while a hump is over it. Not only that, it was unmanned. It's wings weren't flapping and it was completely made of metal, it is a flying aircraft either if its mechanical or magical.

The 'eye' suddenly turned towards them and looked at them. Which scared Marl, his men, and their wyverns as the 'eye' was lookign at the wyvern knights very creepily.

Marl also noticed the letters and the logo of the flying object. "What does those markings mean?" He asked himself. Was this a new plane from the superpowers? They didn't know. His partner was also crawing in confusion as well.

But then suddenly, another Knight said. "Wait a sec, Mein Gott. Its heading to Maihark at high speeds." Marl then said after snapping out of his shock and then turned into horror. "Stop that plane!!!!"

They tried to catch up but failed due to its increasing speed, it is going beyond the maximum speed of a wyvern which is much slower than a biplane. Captain Marl and his men tried to catch up but it was too fast for their wyvens to give chase due to its high speeds.

Captain Marl then grabs his ManaComm. "Headquarters, this is Captain Marl of the 6th Dragon Squadron. An unknown plane is heading straight to Maihark! I repeat its heading to Maihark, we are unable to intercept! I repeat it is heading towards Maihark!"

Maihark Defense Headquarters , Trade City of Maihark
Principality of Qua-Toyne
March 6, 2050/Marckruz 6, 1639

Inside Maihark Defense Headquarters which is dedicated to protect the Trade City of Maihark, leading its defense was Commander Inne von Higuma. She is a native from the Fenn Shogunate. Her mother travelled to Qua-Toyne during the Rodenius War decades ago.

Right now, Commander Inne and her best friend Madar Operator Sanya Haūha from the Kingdom of Topa and her boyfriend Lieutenant Himan Salomann. They were having breakfast together which are eggs, bacon, and some steaks when suddenly the alarms went on. Their time of resting peacefully went over by the sudden alarming sounds.

Bells start ringing across the city as everyone fled for the safety of their homes. While merchants ran leaving their products they sell, and soldiers gathered at the walls manning ballistas armed with Arrows of the Wind God bought from the Sultanate of Altarus.

Hearing the alarms all across both the Defense Headquarters and the Trade City. Madar Operator Sanya accompanied Commander Inne to the Madar Operations Room, while Lieutenant Himan went to the wyvern stables to lead the wyvern knights to intercept the mysterious flying object.

At the Madar Operations Room, Madar Operator Sanya was sitting in front of the Madar as Commander Inne looked out at the balcony connecting to the Madar Operations Room. Commander Inne was looking through her spyglass in search of the flying object.

Madar Operator Sanya then turned to Commander Inne. "Commandant Inne, do you think if it is a wyvern or an aircraft?" In which Commander Inne answered. "I am not sure, Sanya. It is best to look with our own eyes now."

The Madar was specifically designed to detect invisible manawaves produced by living beings and magic-powered aircraft at the air. Unfortunately, the only flaws to the design was that it cannot detect non-magic objects such as for example Mu's purely mechanical aircrafts.

The Madar was used by every nations throughout the Civilized Worlds and outside of the Civilized Worlds as well. This is too prevent any friendly fire incidents that is used to be common even during the time of the Rodenius War decades ago. Right now, aerial battles always fought cautiously.

Madar Operator Sanya then reported to Commander Inne. "The 7th Dragon Squadron are now flying up to intercept the mysterious flying object right now in 5 minutes." Commander Inne nodded. "Gute, let them come closer for a better look so that we know what we are dealing with here. Let's hope that Lieutenant Himan gets more information on the 'white wyvern' right now." She said in both confidence and uncertainty.

Meanwhile in the air, Lieutenant Himan of the 7th Dragon Squadron alongside his own men flew up as they searched for the mysterious flying object. "Headquarters, this is Lieutenant Himan. We are now closing on the mysterious object!" Lieutenant Himan reported through his ManaComm.

The 7th Dragon Squadron are now closing on the mysterious object, they were preparing for interception. However, they realized the object was not attacking but their professionalism made them to maintain their vigilance.

Lieutenant Himan could not believe what he was seeing right now, this mysterious flying object was flying at very high speeds towards Maihark in just mere minutes. "Intercepting the unknown flying object, Now!" Lieutenant Himan said as he and his men have their wyverns shoot fireballs while the ballistas at the ground opened fire.

When they saw the object at a much closer look, they were incredibly shocked by what they are seeing right now. "Mein Gott?!" Lieutenant Himan said in shock as the object began to maneuver around both the fireballs and the ballista bolts with incredible ease.

Lieutenant Himan and his men then maneuvered to position themselves to fire fireballs again at the mysterious object. But suddenly, the mysterious flying object pulled up and ascending into the sky rapidly. Lieutenant Himan and his men tried to give chase but the object was too fast. They were soon outpaced as the intruder swiftly disappeared into the clouds.

As quickly as it had entered Maihark's airspace at the misty morning, it also flew away as its buzzing sound soon faded away. Commander Inne could only watch from the balcony of the Defense Headquarters as an eerie silence came along.

"Scheisse." Commander Inne said to herself in frustration after the mysterious object simply left. Even the Arrows of the Wind God bought from the Sultanate of Altarus barely reached the mysterious flying object. But she was confused, why it did not attack and why does it came from the northeast direction.

Little did Commander Inne know, this was the beginning of a new era. To this day, this incident is referred to as the White Wyvern Incident.

Chapter 2 - Assessing the Situation (Rewrite)

Malacañang Palace, Capital City of Greater Manila
Federal Republic of the Philippines
March 6, 2050/Marckruz 6, 1639

So they made an emergency meeting deep within the underground complex of the Malacañang Palace, the Philippine Twins and the Executive Members of the National Security Council assessed the situations at the War Operations Room. This heavily fortified bunker was built more than ten feet beneath the Malacañang Palace and served as the meeting place during times of crisis and wars. Some of the members were still panicking but were calmed down later on.

For so many hours, the Philippine Government has been discussing their nation's current predicament. At the previous day, the entire nation was engulfed in a massive barrier of light that covered the entire nation and its surroundings. Shortly after that, all contacts with the outside world has been cut off. Everyone immediately thought it's a nuclear explosion, but thankfully it's not but the Twins are having terrible news.

"Alright then everyone, can someone explained to me how did we lost all communications with the outside world?" Philia said to everyone as her voice was filled with concern.

All satellite communications, radio frequencies and everything had been disrupted. There were many speculations if that were technical glitches or a cyber attack from China, but there were no evidences. Even the Chinese Embassy was found to be completely empty for some reason.

"We are still investigating the matter, My Country. The NICA is already investigating the situations right now." Minister of National Defense, Lucia Magsino said as she continued. "However, the NICA has reported that there was no sabotage on our communication systems."

"Very well then, are there any other issues here?" Philia said as she turned her attention to the other executives.

Then the Minister of Interior & Local Government, Enrique dela Rosa rose from his seat as he reported. "My Country, there were many minor crimes and small-scale unrests as there are no concerns there. However, we are facing challenges with reasources throughout the many smaller barangays."

"Oil and other natural gases will be depleted in approximately around three decades or less. We need to find new deposits of natural gases or we should establish diplomatic contact with the outside world. We must find solutions to this problem immediately." The Minister of Environment & Natural Resources, Michael Ejecito said.

"I see then we will make that our top priority. What about the other ministries? Are there anything to report?" Philia said as she noticed the other Ministers were having concerned looks on their faces.

Then the Minister of Foreign Affairs, Roman Santamaria. He is part of the Santamaria Family, as previously mentioned the Santamarias have rivalry with the Moonwalker Family ever since the Philippine-American War. Even after the War, the Santamarias grew distrustful off the Moonwalkers due to the ever present Anti-American Sentiments.

"My country, after what happened at the previous day. We tried to contact all of the foreign embassies to ask them about the situation. However, none of them responded as all of them were out of reach. Even the other members of the USEAN are out as well because all of the foreign embassies were completely empty during closer investigations, and all foreign tourists have suddenly disappeared without a trace. Even our civilians who were living abroad and our overseas workers were found here in our nation along with their belongings." Minister Roman said.

"However, not all the foreigners were missing because many of them are our citizens. Further investigations were made and it is discovered that all the foreigners who are our citizens especially the descendants of those immigrated are still here." Minister Roman continued as he finished.

This shocked everyone as they had realized that the entire Philippines and two of its protectorates have now lost contact with the outside world. This is a very huge problem as now more than 8,000 islands no longer have the flow of both imports and exports along with the many alliances and pacts they're signed.

The Philippine government must now find ways to make contact with the outside world to prevent their nation from collapsing and the death of their Countryhumans because without them, the Philippines will cease to exist. The Twins, Philia and Philip were baffled by the report. They look at each other worried when they realized they are not on Earth anymore.

To make matters even more worse as all of their fellow Countryhumans who were their friends are now forever gone, including the very Countryhuman who helped them ever since the Philippines got its independence from Spain despite the terrible history they have shortly after that day. Now their nation is now all alone in this world except for a few of Countryhumans who are transferred as well.

Not only that there were also two moons and constellations that were unrecognizable, as of today the Twins realized they have a very long road to fix their nations again this time without foreign help from their old world.

Then next is the Minister of Infrastructure, Walter Sarabia. "My Country, even all the damages from our war against the Xian Empire were completely disappeared as if it never happened. All of our dead citizens were also brought back to life as well, even our military equipment we lost against the Xians were back to their current active state." The Twins and the others were suprised to hear this, but many were shaking deeply at the thought of the Xian Empire who attacked them out of nowhere.

Then the Ministry of Science and Technology, Raul Guerro stood up and said. "As for the PAGASA, we are still currently investigating the strange phenomenon and according to our satellites that were also transfered with us. According to the pictures provided by the satellite, we are no longer on Earth right now."

"Additionally, there have been reports of 'unusual distortions' in our domestic networks by the PSA and the DOST. The PSA is planning to launch several low-orbiting satellites for observations and to restore our wireless communications. However, all of our space assets still remained including the satellite that we recently launched with the help of the Americans before the event happened." Minister Raul said as he showed the pictures of the satellite.

After showing the pictures they were shocked that the Philippines was now currently located at a landmass just south of Sabah. The landmass was around the size of half of Australia, there were also a huge landmass possibly as big as Africa located at the west. Two more landmasses of similar size can be seen at the west and central parts of the world. Their Transference to another world means two things for them to be a disaster or a blessing.

It is a disaster because with the loss of their allies and trade partners from Earth, the Philippines now lost billions of pesos in exports. There will be shortages in food, materials resources, and more.

If the Philippine government does nothing about this, then the next few months the Philippines will be once again back to poverty and worse corruption as well as inflation and rapid unemployment. They now lack cooperations with their old world now, there will also be security issues as well.

However, it could also be a blessing for the Philippines. There might be resources that were not touched such as large deposits of oil lurking somewhere nearby. If they are lucky, they might find an uninhabited Islands with fertile soils on the surface and large deposits of minerals underneath.

Minister of Science and Technology, Raul Guerro then continued to explain. "Based on their observation, the blue and red moons that replaced the Earth's moon didn't match any natural satellites on our records we know. The stars and constellations are also off, they also have to determine this world's climate and atmospheric composition. As of now, our scientists and researchers are having a hard time alongside the meteorologists who are also having a hard time determine the strange typhoon that caused our Transference."

"I see, thanks for the reports you gave to us." Said by President Luna Moonwalker who was deeply concerned with Philia who is clearly not happy about this situation.

Then Philip asks the leaders of the Armed Forces of the Philippines their reports, as the Supreme Commander of the Armed Forces of the Philippines. It's his job to protect his nation and more importantly his sister, to those who wandered if the Chief of Staff of the AFP didn't exist in this world. It is simply because Philip needed some assistance in order to get the work done without having tons of stress.

"Alright now, let's discuss our military. Has our current capabilities being compromised or changed in any ways possible?" Philip questioned as he looked at the descendant of the legendary American General Douglas MacArthur Sr, from World War II.

Then Chief General Douglas MacArthur Jr, of the Philippine Army stood up and said. "The Philippine Army has experienced strange changes, as all of our soldiers who died during the previous conflicts were found alive on top of their graves with no memory of how they died. Around more than 11,000 soldiers were brought back to life."

Next is the Philippine Navy led by Chief Admiral Evangeline dela Cruz. "Everyone, the Philippine Navy has also experienced similar effects as the Army but instead there were ships found around the Philippines, these ships were once sunk or scrapped before our Transference."

"These included the ships used by the Americans that were sunk by the Japanese during World War 2, including the many ships from the Naval Battle of Leyte Gulf, the rest are the old ships in our Navy that were sunk in the next wars or were scrap years later. Now all these ships are now back to life and combined with our current ships in the Navy, this makes it around more than 700 ships. Most of them were destroyers, frigates, corvettes, patrol boats, light and escort carriers as well as our LSTs." Chief Admiral Evangeline concluded as the everyone in the National Security Council were shocked to hear all of this.

Then next is the Chief General AANG, a robotic walker. Walkers are robotic, mechanical beings created by the UN originally for peacekeeping operations but later rapidly becoming a huge population today on Earth. However, fearing a robotic revolution, the UN quickly passed robotic rights for robots which made many happy. Many of them had their own citizenship and jobs like AANG.

"Unlike the Army and the Navy, the Air Force was mostly unaffected except for resurrection of our dead pilots who once died in combat during the Spratly Islands Conflict and the Xian War." General AANG said as the others then nodded as the Air Force had barely changed.

"Alright you three, make sure the Armed Forces are ready because I don't want our nation to be atacked just like before. I want many of the of those ships to be reactivated for extra defense. We must not repeat the same mistake when the Xian Empire attacked us." Philip said as he looked at the three with his very serious expression.

But Chief Admiral Evangeline stood up as she objected. "But my country, reactivating those ships would take a lot of money as well as modernization. It takes a lot of time to finish, do you want reactivate the light carriers and the escort carriers that we lost and scrap after the World War 2?"

"Yes Chief Admiral, just the carriers and the destroyers. Although it will take time but our nation's survival is our top priority. Also use the reverse-engineered Xian Technology as well." Philip answered her question as Chief Admiral Evangeline sat down as she nodded.

"As for our people, we need to make sure to calm them down or else risk yet another revolution." Philia said as everyone agrees, they knew that if the entire nation learns about this. There will tons of troubles and riotings.

"I will prepare the Armed Forces just in case especially Mindanao." Philip said as even though much of poverty in Mindanao has been removed, but the corruption there shows that there are still some stubborn terrorists and communists that remained as a thorn on the Philippines.

"I can't believe I have to do this again, I have no choice but to declare a state of emergency lockdown in our nation. I want the Armed Forces to maintain public protection in this time of chaos, in case of any terrorists or communists try to do anything funny. I want all air and sea routes closed to prevent everyone from leaving the country for the meantime temporarily. We will start rationing our food and supplies while maintaining public saftey." Philip said.

"Kuya, is it just like Martial Law." Hearing this everyone was worried, but Philip assures her. "Don't worry Ate, it won't ever happen again. I promise."

"Now then everyone, we find ourselves in a situation we never had before in our entire history. However, we must prepared and resilient just as we done against the Chinese around ten years ago." Philip said as he addressed the rest of the executives.

Everyone nodded in agreement as they were fully aware of that their strength and unity were important as they were vital for surviving this unexpected crisis. After the many past conflicts led to the huge shift in the foreign policy and increased military spending, they had made new strategies to prevent their nation from collapsing and ceasing from existence.

Just as the meeting was about to end, suddenly an officer appeared and whispered something to Chief General AANG who then widened his robotic eyes. "Everyone there is something for you to see. We have a footage that everyone has to see immediately." In his hand is a USB and then he plugged it at the projector nearby.

The projector screen was captured by one of the many MQ-9B Reapers that were conducting reconnaissance missions throughout the surrounding regions of the Philippines, this one was launched from Palawan and sent to explore the southern region.

The footage first began only at the vast expanse of waters below, there were no signs of anything unusual. There were only just a few birds nearby, the drone's mission was to investigate if Indonesia or Malaysia remained.

The MQ-9B Reaper then arrived at Sabah which confirms that Sabah indeed transferred as well. Then it flew west following the coastline as Chief General AANG then fast-forward the video.

Then an astonishing sight appeared before their eyes as a group of flying creatures with human riders on their backs. Gasps of amazement and shock filled the entire room as what they witnessed was beyond their wildest expectations. A group of dragons or more specifically wyverns, easily recognizable due to their front legs being used as wings and being slower than biplanes.

What was more surprising is that one of them charged straight for the MQ-9B Reaper like a daring teenager, fortunately the Reaper turn around and looked at the wyerns and their riders. These men looks like knights with green capes, resembling the knights from Central Europe during the Medieval Age.

After flying past the wyverns and their knights, the MQ-9B Reaper has finally found civilization.
It featured a medieval port city adorned with sailing ships that resembles ship-of-the-lines, galleons, carracks, and galleys. It was supposed to be a highly urbanized area of either Malaysia or Indonesia, not a quaint medieval port city.

Unfortunately, the MQ-9B Reaper was under heavy barrage of what looks like anti-air guns but more primitive. It then looks down searching for the source until the MQ-9B Reaper saw ballistas being used as anti-air weapons.

The MQ-9B Reaper then sensed danger, looking around it sees multiple more wyverns chasing the MQ-9B Reaper. Realising this as the MQ-9B Reaper flew up into the sky until it reaches a safe distance from both the ballistas and the wyverns.

The MQ-9B Reaper continues to fly around the port city eight times, before returning back to Palawan as it has finally completed its mission. The video cut off as the MQ-9B Reaper approaches Palawan, after watching the footage from a MQ-9B Reaper Drone as everyone was shocked as they realized that there are indeed civilizations nearby. Even the Twins were suprised to see this.

Then silence came to the air as everyone who witnessed everything from the video had just stumbled upon what should have existed in fantasy novels, not in real life. But they have finally realized that they were no longer in Earth.

The meeting was later finished after further discussion and they must be careful otherwise there's a possibility that a mage that is powerful as a Countryhuman could not only harm but also destroy the Armed Forces of the Philippines since there is a chance that Magic exist as well.

Later, Philia talks with her brother Philip in a worrying tone. "I told you we will end up intruding their airspace, now this makes it much more difficult to do. This will make things even more complicating."

"Don't worry, I don't think these natives will put a scratch at our soldiers." Philip said as he to knows that the natives might have magic as well but he doubts about how strong it was.

Philia on the other hand, has other thoughts she feared that there might be a one-sided massacre in the future if they were to fight against them. "But we should not underestimate them, because they might have secrets that will be dangerous to us."

They arrived in one of the rooms of the Malacañang, this room is only for the Twins for further discussions with each other. "First up, let's see what the satellites has to offer." Philia said as she began activated the machine.

They then activated the machine creating multiple holograms built specifically by the Americans. In these holograms as there were many pictures taken by the satellites and judging by their architecture, they resembled Central Europe during the Medieval Age. More specifically the late Holy Roman Empire but with more Napoleonic Prussian and Austrian elements added to the mix.

They seem to be around the Late Medieval Age getting close to the Napoleonic Era as evidenced by a picture showing 20 musketeers wearing uniforms that resembled Prussian uniforms, and officers wearing uniforms that resembled Austrian uniforms. This shows that this nation is gonna be indeed either as an ally or an enemy.

They also saw vast fields of farmlands, these fields will most likely put Ukraine or America to shame. Because it appears to be much more abundant than ever than both Ukraine and America combined.

After the holograms were turned off, Philia looked at her brother with a concerned look. She isn't sure if she trust these natives as they were reminded about what happened when the British attacked Manila during the Seven Years War before being pushed out by the combined Philippine-Spanish forces or when the mysterious Xian Empire attacked out of nowhere.

Throughout the history of the Philippines, many countries wanted to take the Philippines for themselves, Spain, France, Netherlands, Britain, America, Germany, Japan, China, and even the mysterious Xian Empire.

But Philip has other plans, so he has an idea. "Ate, I have an idea, I know this is well... how about gunboat diplomacy."

Philia was suprised about her brother's idea, this will not only gives a warning to the natives but also fear and terror. But then she realised that something wasn't right as she looked at her brother in the eyes. "Kuya, are you planning to use that."

But her brother placed his hands on her shoulders saying. "Don't worry Ate, those natives won't even dare shoot an old cannon at us. Please trust me with this." Philip said as he reassured her.

Battlecruiser BRP Philippines , Gre . Manila Harbor
Federal Republic of the Philippines
March 8, 2050/Marckruz 8, 1639

At the Manila Harbor, a fleet of warships of the Philippine Navy has gathered together in order to commence the first contact between the Philippines and the New World. Leading them was the Pride and Joy of the Philippine Navy, the Unique Modern Fast Battleship BRP Philippines.

She is only one of the few modern battleships from World War II that survived to the Modern Era alongside the American Iowa-Class, the British Fast Battleship HMS Vanguard, the French Battleship MN Richelieu, and a few other battleships including some from the Americans.

Many other modern battleships were being built based on the designs of their predecessors such as the German Fast Battleship FMS Bismarck Zwei, the Japanese Super-Dreadnought Battleships JS Yamato Kai and JS Musashi Kai, and the Russian Battleship RFS Rossiya.

The BRP Philippines was actually a sub-class of the Alaska-Class Large Cruisers as a battlecruiser. She is one of the many reparations made by the Americans after they lost the great disastrously Philippine-American War due to the massive amounts of casualties, loss of billions of dollars, and also an angry population of anti-imperialist supporters that attacked the White House which forced the American surrender.

Because she was separated from the other Alaska-Class, she was being built much quicker and commissioned just a year after Germany and the Soviet Union invaded Poland together at 1939. The BRP Philippines was brought to the Philippines as the new Flagship of the Philippine Navy, however it was in Pearl Harbor where its new crew of Filipinos and a few American veterans were training there.

Unfortunately, the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor just a few months after the training began. The Americans failed to defend themselves from the relentless Japanese attacks, but to their luck as the Filipino sailors immediately began shooting the Japanese. They shot down a lot of Japanese pilots despite their current training and their lack of experience with anti-air fire.

However, thanks to their heroic actions as many of the nearby American battleships near the BRP Philippines were saved including the later greatly beloved USS Arizona. A few battleships were sunk but were later recovered, some of them just takes a few months to repair.

When the Filipino crewmembers of the BRP Philippines heard what happened to their motherland, they begged their American trainers that they have to save their people but the Americans refused due to their orders they have received from their superiors.

In an act of rebellion, they left Pearl Harbor all alone much to the shock of the Americans when they found out what happened a few hours later. Surprisingly, some of the American veterans who trained the Filipino sailors joined them due to their deep regret and their desired redemption about the horrible atrocities committed at the Philippine-American War.

They later managed to save what remained of the Philippine Navy at the southern end of the Island of Borneo, the BRP Philippines has sunk a few Japanese cruisers and destroyers that were trying to sink the heavily damaged old flagship BRP Las Filipinas. After saving them, the BRP Philippines escorted her navy towards Australia and then to Pearl Harbor where the Americans tried to apprehend the Filipino sailors but were forced to stop due to Philia Maharlikas, General Douglas MacArthur Sr, and President Manuel L. Quezon.

The BRP Philippines then later participated the Battle of Guadalcanal where she fought the Japanese Battlecruiser IJN Kirishima, heavily damaging the Japanese battlecruiser allowing the US Air Force to sink her alongside her sister ship IJN Hiei the next morning.

Then the BRP Philippines participated in the Battle of the Philippine Sea, where she provided anti-air cover for her American allies. Even the Filipino sailors were enjoying the massacre of their hated enemies as revenge for their home islands.

Then the Battle of Leyte Gulf where the BRP Philippines participated in the Battle Off Samar where she saved the Taffy 3 from the Imperial Japanese Navy, there she fought the Yamato-Class including the heavily damaged IJN Musashi that is looking like an eyesore for the Filipino sailors. This caused the Filipino battlecruiser to open fire at the IJN Musashi than the other nearby

Japanese warships.

The IJN Musashi could no longer hold on after receiving enormous amounts of damage from both the American pilots and the BRP Philippines causes it to sink at a rapid pace on just more than eleven minutes, before its ammunition cooked off and creating a massive explosion that tore the entire super-battleship in two much to the shock and awe of everyone else.

The Japanese horrified after witnessing their once glorious battleship were forced to retreat immediately, many of Taffy 3 including the Escort Aircraft Carrier USS Gambier Bay were saved alongside a few heroic American Destroyers such as USS Samuel B. Roberts and the USS Johnson.

It then later participated in the Battle of Manila, where she alongside the BRP Las Filipinas provided naval gunfire. But when they heard that the Japanese sailors who were defending Manila were massacring the Filipino civilians including women and children, enraged by this as the Filipino sailors opened fired at the Japanese positions near Intramuros which resulted in the Intramuros Massacre.

A decade later, the BRP Philippines and its fleet were sent to support their allies during the Korean War. The most notable action was when the American Iowa-Class Battleship USS Winsconsin opened fired at the North Korean positions after receiving a hit. The BRP Philippines surprisingly joined the bombardment as well, later after the USS Winsconsin received a Morse Code of "Temper Temper" from the nearby American destroyer.

The BRP Philippines also joined the Borneo Conflict where it engaged the Malaysian Battleship KD Malaysia which is originally the British Dreadnought Battleship HMS Malaya but was given to the Malaysians in attempt to rival the American influence. The naval battle ended when both ran out of ammunition which forced both flagships to retreat to their homelands.

The BRP Philippines also became neutral during the Philippine Civil War when her captain decided to lead the navy out of the conflict as well as creating naval blockage preventing anyone from leaving or entering the country alongside the Americans, but later changed sides after hearing about Ferdinand Marcos Sr,'s crimes against humanity which helped the Filipinos a lot.

The BRP Philippines continued her service all the way to the Modern Era when she earned the Guiness World Record as the longest serving battlecruiser in the world. She has been in service in the Philippine Navy for more than 100 years despite the end of the Era of Battleships.

In order to keep the BRP Philippines in service, in the Modern Era where big ships with big guns are useless because of missiles especially anti-ship missile. The Philippines entered a joint secret project alongside the United States of America, the State of Japan, and the Republic of Korea to test new naval weapons.

This resulted with the ship's upgrade, all of the obsolete parts of the ship were replaced with new materials and new equipment. Her main guns were replaced with new cannons that rivals the railguns, the Ion Cannons which uses Ionic Energy which is newly discovered by the Americans during the height of the Cold War by simply manipulating and controlling the Ionic Energy itself which causes to explode wildly.

Her secondary guns which were 5-Inch were replaced with new rapid-fire multi-purpose guns. The guided weapons system used by the Filipinos is called the Pheadra System which is just like American Aegis System as all of the anti-aircraft guns were replaced with VLS and a few CIWS.

The ship is also equipped with new sensors and radar, as well as the first ever shield generator used by a ship in addition to the new armor made of pure titanium making the modern battleship unsinkable, a far cry compared to other ships that were once considered as unsinkable.

The ship also only required a small number of crewmembers because the ship was mostly automated. The modern battleship was also equipped with the new Mark-3 Nuclear Ion Power Core that powered the entire ship itself.

The ship was upgraded at a secret underground base and can only be activated in case of China, the Chinese has been aggressively expanding its territories at the South China Sea. When the Chinese finally began with the Attack on Greater Manila when the BRP Philippines was stationed there and destroyed many of the Chinese aircraft and missiles which saved Greater Manila.

The BRP Philippines later participated at the Spratly Islands Conflict where she engaged a few Chinese modern battleships with the help of its allies including the Malaysian Battleship KD Malaysia. It was here that the BRP Philippines heavily damaged the Chinese Aircraft Carrier PLAN Fujian, thanks to the efforts of the USEAN as the Chinese were defeated in a massive Filipino victory.

Then the mysterious Xian Empire attacked the Philippines through a series of portals known as the Black Rings, but the Philippine Navy alongside the Coast Guard and other Allied Navies manage to defeat the Xian Empire and destroyed the Black Rings.

The Fast Battleship BRP Philippines was credited with the sinking of more than 50 Xian Warships including 18 Xian Battleships which brought back the Age of Battleships in the Old World of Earth.

Now after the Transference, she is upgraded with reversed-engineered Xian Technology and sent on an important mission: She is to serve as the flagship of the diplomatic fleet which is made of some World War 2 and some Cold War ships.

Leading the diplomatic fleet was Admiral Siegfried Kalinawan, he is a Half-Filipino and Half-German as he was abnormally tall, handsome, and impressive. He has black hair with a thin strip of red on his hair and blood red eyes. He wears black service uniform with red accents, ribbons, and medals. A black cap with scarlet red embroidery, black iron mask, and a robotic eyepatch on his left eye. On his right hand was his personal cane and on his cap was both the Iron Cross and the Morning Sun combined.

But he is worried, what if those flying lizards reached Sabah. If they do it this will threaten not just the Bangsamoro Commonwealth, but also it's protector the Philippines just like the Xian Empire. He signed as he hoped that the natives were friendly.

Not only that, he was a veteran of the Spratly Islands Conflict and the Xian War. During the former conflict, a Chinese anti-ship missile struck the ship's superstructure causing heavy damage and losing his voice in the process. Which is why he wears a special mask designed as his new voice today.

While thinking about what to do, he was then met by a young woman behind him. It is his sister Captain Gabriella Kalinawan as she is a young and beautiful woman with golden yellow long and flowing hair, red eyeglasses and also holding her IPad in her arm. She wears the same black service uniform as the her brother but with a skirt and yellow accents, and no ribbons and medals. Lastly was a black cap with golden yellow embroidery with the Iron Cross and the Morning Sun combined as one.

Captain Gabriella was looking at her brother as she spoke. "Kuya, new orders from Our Country. We will now begin our journey to our first contact with the New World, additionally as your good friend is here now."

Admiral Siegfried smiled under his mask. "Very good ate, tell the fleet that to get ready on my command." Captain Gabriella looked at her brother as she nodded and another figure appeared as he smiled.

The man wears a unique black Barong Tagalog with red embroidery that resembled the flowing of scarlet blood, jet black pants and polished black shoes. He has a robotic right eye, a walking cane on his left hand, and a black fedora on his head as he smiled. There was also a white armband with both the Iron Cross and the Morning Sun combined on it as symbol of his love and loyalty to the Fatherland.

Admiral Siegfried smiled as he said and gave a handshake. "Ahh, Ambassador Heinrich. It is good to see you again." That was Ambassador Heinrich Valdez from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs, he is also a Half-Filipino and Half-German as well.

Both he and Admiral Siegfried traced their ancestral origins to the Holocaust during World War II when many German Jews took refuge and lived in the Philippines for many years. Later on, their people developed a deep massive hatred for even the tiniest trace of Nazism or anything similar to racial supremacy to the great extreme. Some of them even took great immense joy in torturing the racial supremacists and have them choke on their blood for their racial supremacy beliefs.

Ambassador Heinrich then smiled as he said and accepted the handshake. "Indeed Admiral Siegfried, it is good to see you as well. Now then, shall we begin my friend." Admiral Siegfried said as he smiled.

Admiral Siegfried then turned as he activated his communications. "Attention all ships, it is time to set sail for the Fatherland!"
